

Course Registration Procedures

About the Types of Class Subjects and Credits Required for Master's Programs in the Graduate School of Medicine

Master's Programs Curriculum Table

Class Subject		Class Format	No. of Credits	Class Schedule
				First Year		Second Year
				Fall	Spring	Fall	Spring
Compulsory Subject	Morphology of Human Body	Lecture	2 Credits		○
	Physiology of Human Body	Lecture	2 Credits		○
	Molecular Pathology	Lecture	2 Credits		○
	Social Life Science	Lecture	2 Credits		○
	Introduction to Clinical Medicine	Lecture	2 Credits		○
	Seminar on Medical Science	Seminar	8 Credits	○	○	○	○
	Experimental Research on Medical Science	Experiment / Practical Training	8 Credits	○	○	○	○
	Selected Topics in Basic Medicine (TOKURON)	Lecture	2 Credits	○	○	○	○
	Basic Training for Medical Science	Experiment / Practical Training	2 Credits	○	○	○	○

To complete the master's program, students must earn 30 credits from the compulsory subjects.

① Morphology of Human Body, Physiology of Human Body, Molecular Pathology, Social Life Science and Introduction to Clinical Medicine:

The above 5 subjects are held as 2-month intensive classes from April to June every year. The class timetable will be announced at a later date.

② Seminar on Medical Science and Experimental Research on Medical Science:

The two subjects “Seminar on Medical Science” and “Experimental Research on Medical Science” are held in the student’s lab/research room and cover basic research methods, experiments, and practical training tailored to students’ individual research projects.

③ Selected Topics in Basic Medicine (TOKURON):

These are one-off lectures delivered by faculty members from various fields, and 2 credits will be awarded for attending at least 15 lectures. Students may also attend TOKUPRO lectures and count them toward their TOKURON lecture requirement.

④ Basic Training for Medical Science:

Students need to apply for Basic Training for Medical Science online and take at least 4 courses/2 credits (0.5 credits per a course). You can apply for up to 4 Basic Training courses in one semester.

Note: Taking the same course more than once will not meet the completion requirements.

○How to apply for and take Basic Training courses

Please apply online within a designated registration period for each semester.

Applications are limited to a maximum of 4 courses each for the spring and fall semesters (8 courses per year).

Students are required to complete an online survey after taking each course.

For more information about registration for each course, please visit the Graduate School of Medicine website.